- This author talks about how this can be traced back to slavery, the removal of kids from families, and why many of folks don't trust child welfare and the state

PRE-TRIAL/DETENTION/BOND MITIGATION & SUPPORT

- Therapy—Black/Latinx therapists if your clients are asking for one
- Visit often to build rapport—not just to talk about the case.
- Plant that seed early when it comes to language and the way stakeholders view kids. Raise race early so the Judge hears you loud and clear. Similar to when we raise race in a jury trial.

DATA & DATA TOOLS

National Statistics:

Although Black youth comprised only approximately 16% of youth ages 10-17 in the United States in 2018, they accounted for:

35% of all juvenile arrests,

40% of detained youth,

39% of the youth formally processed by the juvenile court,

37% of the youth adjudicated, and

51% of youth judicially waived to criminal court.

Delinquency case rates for Black youth (53.9 per Black youth in the U.S. population) was still nearly triple the rate for:

White youth (18.3)

Hispanic youth (17.6), and

American Indian youth (21.5), and was almost 12 times the rate for Asian youth (4.6)

Despite overall juvenile crime trending down, the proportion of delinquency cases involving Black, Hispanic/Latinx, and American Indian youth increased between 2005 and 2019.

In 2019, White youth were less likely to have their cases handled formally (48%) as compared to

Black youth (60%),

Hispanic/Latinx youth (52%),

American Indian youth (56%), or

Asian youth (52%)

Hockenberry & Puzzanchera, 2021

Black youth are 53.1% of youth transferred (petitioned) for person offenses despite the fact that black and white youth make up an equal percentage of youth charged with person offenses, 40.1% and 40.5% respectively, in 2015.
